

I'm a resistance fighter™

Combating antimicrobial resistance (AMR)

As a Service for the Prevention and Control of Infections, we believe that combating antimicrobial resistance requires the joint work of various disciplines, such as nurses in infection control, infectious diseases physicians, microbiologists and pharmacists. Every day we prioritize patients and implement strategies to minimize the appearance and spread of resistant microorganisms through improved adherence to hand, environmental and patient hygiene, safe procedures and appropriate use of antimicrobials. Because all of us need to be resistance fighters.
