Combating antimicrobial resistance (AMR)

As a hospital pharmacist, I know that inappropriate use of antimicrobials can create life-threatening risks for patients and reduce the effectiveness of new and existing drugs. This is why I work closely with medical and laboratory teams to ensure patient treatment decisions are based on timely diagnostic tests that accurately identify infectious pathogens. Because all of us need to be resistance fighters.

Learn more at AntimicrobialResistanceFighters.org